

Meredith faculty, staff, and students,

Since yesterday's messages to faculty, staff, and students regarding novel coronavirus or COVID-19, new information and guidance has emerged. We are continuing to monitor this rapidly evolving public health issue.

While we intend for our campus to remain open, we are committed to doing what is prudent and in the best interest of our community. We are working on alternative options that will allow us to continue to provide a high quality educational experience over the coming weeks.

An announcement about these plans will be shared with you via email by 5 p.m. today, March 12, 2020.

Thank you for your patience as we continue to monitor this unprecedented, rapidly changing situation.
