

Class Attendance

Disability Services understands that some disabilities may impact class attendance. Unfortunately, Disability Services cannot officially excuse absences or provide an accommodation of a flexible attendance policy because attendance is often a fundamental element of the class. However, at the student's request, Disability Services will include a statement about how the disability may impact class attendance on eligible students' accommodation letters and request that instructors take that into consideration when determining a student's final grade in the course. The final decision regarding absences and their impact on the course, including grading, is at the discretion of the Instructor.
